FROM THE SECRETARIAT

Dear Friends,

In January of last year, the United Nations proclaimed a Second International Decade of the World's Indigenous People, aiming to further strengthen international cooperation for the solution of problems faced by indigenous people in such areas as culture, education, health, human rights, the environment and social and economic development. Indigenous people all over the world are often among the most disadvantaged of their lands, experiencing discrimination and marginalisation on the basis of their identity.

Australia's Indigenous people have one of the oldest living cultures in the world and a heritage that goes beyond 50,000 years.

Let this new year bring with it a determination to ensure that every person has choices about how they live, and the means to make those choices, and that the distinctive rights of our Indigenous sisters and brothers as the original peoples of this land, are recognised. A life of opportunity and dignity, free from discrimination and disadvantage, is not just an ideal, but a basic human right for every Australian.

2006 is the 20th anniversary of Pope John Paul II's visit to Alice Springs and his address to Indigenous Australians, and 2007 is the 40th anniversary of the 1967 Referendum.

To celebrate the 20th Anniversary of Pope John Paul II's visit to Alice Springs in 1986, the National Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Catholic Council (NATSICC) is holding its National Assembly in the Red Centre, October 2 to 7.

From ancient times, the message stick has been used in Aboriginal culture to call people from different tribes together. On May 1 2005, each State and Territory NATSICC Councillor was given a Message Stick at a National Mass at St Mary's Cathedral, Sydney. These Message Sticks are being relayed around parishes, local communities and schools. As they move from place to place, they carry an invitation to all of us to celebrate the message of hope and reconciliation in our own hearts and communities. The Message Stick Relay will culminate at Alice Springs, when these message sticks will be joined together for the start of the National Assembly.

The ACSJC's 2006 Social Justice Diary focuses on social justice for Indigenous Australians. Each month, significant events for Indigenous Australians are noted and particular social justice issues affecting Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islanders are identified. The diary is an educational and spiritual resource for all who wish to continue the journey towards justice for, and reconciliation with our Indigenous sisters and brothers.

Just prior to Australia Day, the Australian Catholic Social Justice Council released a Background Paper, "Stolen Wages – An Opportunity for Justice?" It addresses the issue of non-payment of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander workers during the 20th Century. Tens of thousands of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people worked for government and non government employers during the 20th century. Many of these workers received only a portion of the wage to which they were entitled.

In the Media Release to mark this publication, Bishop Christopher Saunders, ACSJC Chairman, urged all Australians to acknowledge the contribution of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander workers who are a part of the Australian community:

"Over many generations people from a range of cultural backgrounds have helped to build the nation. Sadly the contribution of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander workers is yet to be fully acknowledged."

Let us pray ...
May God bless us
and be at work within us and amongst us
so that together
we will continue to be the presence of God in our world. Amen

ACSJC BACKGROUND PAPER: STOLEN WAGES – AN OPPORTUNITY FOR JUSTICE?

Tens of thousands of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people worked for government and non government employers during the 20th century. Many of these workers received only a portion of the wage to which they were entitled. The cycle of poverty experienced by a number of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples can be partly attributed to wages not being paid. A large amount of money earned by Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander workers remains in the hands of the state. Some measures taken so far to remedy this past injustice have not been adequate.

The issue of "stolen wages" needs to be examined in depth by all Australian governments. It is an opportunity for symbolic and practical reconciliation firmly grounded in the basic principle of justice.

This Background paper provides basic information on the circumstances facing many Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander individuals and families seeking wages they were not paid for years of work. The Paper is available on the ACSJC's website:

http://www.socialjustice.catholic.org.au/Content/pdf/2006\_1\_23stolen\_wages\_-\_an\_opportunity\_for\_justice.pdf

FEBRUARY SOCIAL JUSTICE CALENDAR - COVER ART STORY

The painting on the cover of ACSJC's 2006 Social Justice Diary is Yanaawaanha ngali, Walking together. The artist, Cassandra Gibbs, is a Kamilaroi woman who lives in Sydney. This is her story of the painting.

This painting grew out of a friendship between a black woman and a white woman who discovered a shared spirituality that transcended colour and gender and found a home in our souls. We have both been blessed.

The painting is the story of Kath O'Connor's family and her journey with the Josephite Sisters. In the centre of the painting are the eggs of the rainbow serpent. Each egg represents a member of Kath's family.

Surrounding the eggs is the rainbow serpent. The rainbow serpent travelled the land during the dreaming and created all the landforms as we know them. In this painting the rainbow serpent is there to protect Kath's family from harm.

On the back of the snake are the Josephite symbols, representing the journey Kath has made with them.

The circles around the outside of the painting represent all the areas where Kath has lived during her time as a Josephite sister. The double circles depict the significant places of her journey.

Behind the circles are hand prints. These represent her time at these places. Often, as Aboriginal people travelled the land, they left their hand prints on cave walls to say where they had been and to tell stories.

The sand surrounding the hands represents Kath's forebears, forced to leave their homeland, the Celtic shores of Ireland, and travel across the seas to find their new home on the sandy shores of the island of Australia.

This picture tells the story of Kath's journey, but it is also my way as an Aboriginal woman to put down the importance of my friendship with Kath and her connection to my heart, my life and my spirituality.

FEBRUARY 11      WORLD DAY OF THE SICK

INDIGENOUS HEALTH: Indigenous people were described in the writings and diaries of the early settlers, as probably the healthiest people in the world prior to 1788. - Professor Marie Bashir, Governor of NSW, Launch of ANTaR's Healing Hands Indigenous Health Rights Campaign, Feb. 2004

Currently, there is a gap of 20 years between the life expectancy of non-Indigenous Australians and the first peoples:

- the life expectancy at birth for an Indigenous male is 56 years; for males in the total Australian population it is 76 years
- for an Indigenous female it is 63 years; for females in the total population it is 82 years.
- Life expectancy figures for Indigenous Australians are comparable to those in Bangladesh (male 61.7 years and female 61.9 years) and Vietnam (male 55.9 years and female 61.4 years).

Indigenous Australians die most frequently from:

- the consequences of diabetes
- infectious diseases
- heart disease
- injuries and assaults
- cancer.

All of these conditions are treatable and preventable. Diabetes death rates among Indigenous Australians are eight times as high, respiratory deaths almost four times as high and circulatory conditions almost three times as high as non-Indigenous Australians.

Infant mortality rates are about twice as high as for other Australians. Babies of Indigenous mothers are twice as likely to be of low birth weight (less than 2,500 grams) as those of non-Indigenous mothers.

FEBRUARY 21      INTERNATIONAL MOTHER LANGUAGE DAY

Prior to colonisation there were approximately 250 Indigenous languages spoken in Australia. Some of these had several varieties, and there were altogether about 500 language varieties used across Australia. Many of the Australian Indigenous languages have declined to a critical state. There are approximately 50 Indigenous languages left, many with only a few remaining speakers. This means that these languages are being lost at a rate of approximately one per year.
